Jim was born on January 28, 1948, in Tulsa, Oklahoma, the son of Lee and Nina Faye (Downs) Williams. On March 23, 2002, he married his wife, Rhonda, in Hot Springs, Arkansas. He also enjoyed traveling, grilling, golfing, watching the Broncos and Sooners, playing guitar and singing. Jim graduated at the top of his platoon in the Marines, and was discharged with honors, and earned his dress blues for free in the process. He served our country in Vietnam, and became an Elvis impersonator with the stage name of Johnny Barron, and wrote a saying about time and memories and had it copywritten in 1988. He was as healthy as anyone could hope for until diagnosed with Alzheimers at the age of 59. Memorial donations may be made in Jim’s name to the Alzheimer’s Association.
