Amanda Grisham posted:

To be able to give just one good memory would be impossible as all of my memories of working with Cameron and the few times a few of my fellow coworkers were able to spend time with him was nothing short of memorable and always with laughter. Cameron always gave me the benefit of the doubt and always showed concern for his employees, friends and family. If you were having a bad day or off your game he never was upset and always took the time to listen and empathize with others. His heart was pure, his mind brilliant and he was and always will be the most sincere and kind person I had the privilege of knowing. I will fondly remember the days working with the silly, generous and respectful man that he was. God be with you and protect you. With love Mandi
