Paul Moss was my Uncle. He was also one of the best friends I ever had. He took me as a little boy to visit the Will Rogers museum, and for years afterwards I somehow in my ten-year-old mind blurred the distinctions between those two men. Uncle Moss, too, never met a man he didn't like; and I never met a man who didn't like Uncle Moss. I loved him. He was a fine man, a good man, a thoroughly decent man, and I shall miss him as long as I live. Terence Knox Los Angeles, California
