Most of my favorite childhood memories include Jeff. He was one of my very best friends during jr. High and high school until he moved to Houston. He had a heart of gold and a sense of humor that still makes me smile to this day. I saw Jeff for the last time about 10 years ago and only wish I would have kept in better contact. Jeff, you will truly be missed.

It saddens me to know that sometimes friends don't really keep up with one another these days unless they are on Facebook. This sudden loss of a good friend reminds me that I need to pick up the phone more often and call those friends that are not active on Facebook too. I am friends with Kelli and will reach out to your children when the time is right and share with them some of the stories about you and I in Junior High. Boy will they be surprised...or will they? RIP brother. You will be missed "Jeff".-Bonner

I still can't believe you're gone. So unreal. I'm so glad we got to know each other these last five years. I will miss you and your silliness, but I will always remember the good times we had both in game and in real life. Farewell my friend. — Love Cidari/Wishwash
