Brandon Mcpherson lit a candle in honor of Foster.

My Grandfather was a proud man who had served to defend this country, loved his family, and shown sorrow and regret upon his death bed. I recall while growing up he had shown tough love in the form of military fashion, it is that tough love and push that was needed to be able to keep the family strong. If my Grandfather was alive and well today I would enjoy going fishing with him. My Grandfather loved playing his guitar and singing for the Lord with his wife, my Grandmother, Ollie Bryant and also performed at times at the church just across the street from where the family came together. Foster's favorite animal was Eagles, he would enjoy any old western shows while rocking away in his rocking chair, he is forever missed and is cherished by loved ones. Rest peacefully GrandPa. -Brandon
