She not only taught children to speak Spanish but she also served as an interpreter for the Hispanic community. Nora was a lady who loved life. When she wasn't volunteering her time to drive friends to the doctor where she often translated and filled out paperwork for them she could be found reading, cooking and listening to good music. This special lady was surrounded by a loving family and cherished friends who supported her during happy times and difficult times. Nora will be remembered as a lady who fought valiantly, who lived life to its fullest and had a positive impact on the lives of everyone she met.
