As Sis indicates, I too last saw Uncle Jack at a family reunion and remember smiling and laughing out loud from all the stories from long ago. I was singing out a silly song just yesterday, one of my favorite ways to relieve stress and feel comforted. After reading his obituary, I now know where this trait may have originated. Jack will be welcomed into Heaven and be greeted with his parents and brothers open arms. I will be praying for everyone to make it through this difficult time.
