Born on April 17, 1949, Vickie was a woman of warmth and compassion, and her gentle spirit touched the lives of all who had the privilege of knowing her. As a dedicated and loving housewife, she made her family's home a place of comfort, warmth, and joy. Her nurturing presence created a haven for her loved ones, where they always felt safe and supported.

Vickie had a variety of interests that brought her immense joy throughout her life. She had a passion for bowling, spending countless hours at the lanes with friends and family, delighting in the camaraderie and friendly competition. Her skill with a needle and thread was evident in her intricate and beautiful needlepoint creations, each a testament to her creativity and patience.

A brilliant mind, Vickie loved to challenge herself with crosswords, the allure of solving the most perplexing puzzles never failing to captivate her. Her tenacity and determination in solving them were a reflection of her strong will and desire to conquer any obstacle in her path.

Beyond her hobbies, Vickie had a life-long love for video games, a pursuit that bridged the generations. The adventures of Mario and Donkey Kong held a special place in her heart, sparking a spark of joy and excitement as she embarked on virtual journeys through their colorful worlds.
