I'll never forget on the way to elementary school one morning with my brother and she had her robe and nightgown on and was fixing to drop off me and my brother the elementary school and the garbageman got in her way and she accidentally ran over him and he flew over the car and the police came as she was wearing a robe. It was the most embarrassing thing I ever had happen at the time, but now I look back it was the funniest thing that I've ever seen, she didn't hurt him at all.
