Virgil, who has not only been an incredible mentor but also a valued friend to many of us. Virgil's intelligence and dedication were truly remarkable. He always went the extra mile to teach and share his knowledge with those eager to learn. His passion for educating others was evident in the way he would invest his time, even if it meant more work for himself. There are countless stories that come to mind when I think of Virgil. We've shared numerous laughs, some at his expense and others at mine, whether it was during a 2:00 am callout or at the start of the day. His generosity and willingness to help have undoubtedly contributed to the successes many of us enjoy today.
