“ My favorite story about Aunt Easter is one time we were at a gas station and a cowboy walked by in skin tight jeans and Easter said something along the lines of "Look at the butt on that one." My mom (Easter's niece Carol) said, "Easter!" and Easter said, "What? I'm 70, not dead". She always made me laugh.

“ I first met my wife Carol's Aunt Easter, after she told me that her aunt was 80 and still climbing around on her roof, cleaning leaves, etc. I went over to her house, fixed plumbing, mowed the yard, cleaned brush, etc. One of the greatest joys I had was buying her a bouquet of flowers, for no other reason than no one else had for some time. Her smile and gratitude were infectious – so I did it again whenever I came back into town. A hundred, or two hundred years ago, she would have been the 'Pioneer Woman', heading across the country by covered wagon. She has gone home to be with Jesus, as I knew her also by her faith. I will miss her – but I won't miss having known her. She was...unique.
