“ Leonard was my friend from all the way back to Jr High School at Wilson when we first met. I always enjoyed seeing him at the reunions and the look on his face was that he seemed to be as thrilled to see me as I was to see him. I always remember being a part of a small group that waited at the hospital to see if he was going to survive. I was always happy that he did and never complained about the after affects of his injuries. I shall never forget him and will miss seeing him at reunions. Carl Snow.

I always enjoyed visiting with Leonard at reunions. He seemed to enjoy our conversations as much as I did. Prayers for his family during a very difficult time.

“ Unlike Leonard's friends and family, I am an acquaintance. I met Leo through his daughter Dustina over the phone. I lived in Hollywood at that time, Dustina became friends through a rough, but honest group of people there in Hollywood.

Dustina constantly suggested that she wanted me to call her father. I never knew a person so eager for me to meet their parent. Apparently it turned out that we shared a few principled values and enjoyed our, at the time, ver boisterous and popular US President.

Leo and I spoke on the phone that day, not about politics or religion, but about Dustina and her love of certain guiding principles and her relationship with God.

I don't know Leo very well, but I'm sure we will meet on day soon.
