“ I remember Virginia as an avid reader, and a lover of poetry. She had a sharp mind. I still treasure each spring the white iris that grow in my garden – she divided her flowers and gave some to me. Her beautiful spirit lives on in my garden, and in the hearts of all who loved her.

“ I remember the poems that Virginia wrote.....she had a fine inquiring mind, and she used lovely words. Papa Rodger

“ Just one example of my "deaf" aunt. Here she comes down our street waving and calling my name. I had just picked up the kids from school and walked away from the car to let her know we were home. She's huffing and puffing and waving her arms like a hurricane. What's the news? She has learned a new dance called the "Macarena" and wants to teach us. So all 3 of us get behind her and she is leading us in the dance steps. What a hoot the neighbors must have gotten in seeing all of us laughing and jumping around and shouting "Hey Macarena" For someone who couldn't hear a thing...she sure stayed up on the latest music and dances. I often wondered if she was not pulling our leg about being deaf. Love you Aunt Jean
